

Terence Hayes

Terry was born in Toronto, Ontario to Scottish parents who immigrated from Glasgow, Scotland and currently holds a Canadian and British / E.U. passport. As a child his biggest love was music. He taught himself to play guitar and piano age of 14 and began composing his own music and songs.

After high school he studied music at Cambrian College in Ontario with aspirations being a professional musician and composer. Terry then took a year off and backpacked throughout Europe.

Upon returning to Canada Terry moved to Calgary Alberta and worked numerous construction jobs while playing in nightclubs with his band Denim Row. After two years Terence moved to Victoria B.C. and returned to school where he began his first year of journalism at U of Vic. After completing his first year he switched to the Applied Communications Program majoring in film and graduated with a diploma. He worked his way through school singing in two local rock bands, Public Scales and Perfect Stranger.

Today, Terence lives in Victoria BC and works as a writer, producer and director in the film industry as well as an accomplished songwriter with dozens of original tunes to his credit.